Venezuela leader rallies militack his challenger

CARACAS
Venezuelan leader Nicolas Maduro prepared to rally military supporters on Friday as the US and key allies backed a challenge from his rival who declared himself acting President. The announcement by Guaido, 35, head of the Opposition-led legislature, came amid a fresh round of deadly street clashes on Friday. Guaido declared himself acting president of the oil-rich nation, which has lurched into economic chaos and violence since Maduro, 56, took power in 2013. The Socialist Government has been criticised by warning that the military leadership would be ousted on Thursday "in violation of the constitutional order", Defence Minister Vladimir Padrino Lopez said. He added the military will back Guaido for the sovereignty of Venezuela. It was a warning shot to his foreign critics as they urged Maduro to step down. President Donald Trump declared Maduro "illegitimate" and called the National Assembly legislature

"the only legitimate branch of Government." A furious Maduro responded to the US move by breaking off diplomatic ties with the "imperialist" US Government, giving its diplomats 72 hours to leave. The US State Department said it did not recognise Maduro as President anymore so his order meant nothing. France added its support for Guaido, also branding tutional means, we cannot accept that." UN Secretary General Antonio Guterres appealed for dialogue to avoid the political crisis spiralling out of control. Maduro was reelected in May in snap elections boycotted by the Opposition and denounced around the world as illegitimate. Analysts at the Eurasia Group consultancy said his opponents could only prevail if the top military command abandons him. Maduro has presided over a deepening economic crisis that has left millions in poverty as the country faces shortages of basic necessities such as food and medicine. Some 2.3 million people have fled the country since 2015, according to the United Nations. The International Monetary Fund says inflation will hit 10 million percent this year. A dozen regional players have also backed Guaido, including Brazil, Argentina, Colombia and Canada. Mexico and Cuba stood firm in support of Maduro. Spanish Foreign Minister Josep Borrell said fresh elections in Venezuela were the "only way out" of the crisis.

Chinese scientistew plea against gene-edited moil on Jan 29

In a breakthrough, researchers have cloned five monkeys from a gene-edited macaque that had an rhythm disorders tied with depression, cancer and heart disease. The first time multiple gene-edited monkeys have been cloned, a research news agency reported Friday. The cloned monkeys, close-er to humans in terms of activity routines, brain structure and metabolic rate, make better models for research on disease pathogenesis and potential therapeutic treatments, said the team from Institute of Neuroscience of Chinese Academy of Sciences in Shanghai. To create an ideal donor monkey, the researchers knocked out BMAL1, a core circadian regulatory transcription factor, using gene editing
